The Issue

- The first 20+ years of most people's lives is about education.
- Some people excel at school naturally and don't need outside help but that tends to be a small percentage of the population. Everybody has their strengths and weaknesses.
- People usually overcome their weaknesses by getting help from a resource from the internet, books, or by paying for tutors.
- However, with the growing economy, prices are inflating and many people can't afford to pay for academic help.

What is it?

- App for school help
  - Receiving and offering tutoring
  - Buying and Selling textbooks
- Tutoring can be filtered by
  - Standard subjects in school
  - ACT/SAT Prep
  - SAT Subject Test Preparation (by subject)
  - AP Tests

WHO IS IT FOR?

- Students of any age who either want to earn volunteer hours or money; or get help
  - High schoolers
  - College Students
  - Not limited by age, but must be a student to either offer or recieve help

Targeted towards economically disadvantaged students who need help in education and testing.

WHAT WE DID

- Think of instagram layout with a toolbar at the bottom that can take you to...
  - A Calendar with dates for future tutoring sessions, upcoming SAT/ACT test dates, when applications open, and more
  - Homepage with scrolling for getting and offering services for tutoring
  - Message center for tutors and their students to communicate
  - Profile page with information about yourself, where you go to school, and if you are a tutor, whether you are currently open to accepting more students

We want to provide a feasible and user friendly interface to allow the connection for students to help each other along the complex path of education. Someone's socioeconomic status should not infringe on their educational opportunities.
